The book is divided into three main sections, each focusing on a different aspect of Marxist theory:

- Section 1: Marx's Early Writings

This section explores Marx's early philosophical and economic writings, examining the intellectual foundations of his revolutionary ideas. The authors analyze his seminal works, including the 'Economic and Philosophic Manuscripts of 1844' and the 'Theses on Feuerbach,' highlighting the development of his critique of capitalism and his vision for a socialist society.

- Section 2: Marx and Engels' Collaboration

This section examines the collaborative works of Marx and Engels, focusing on their groundbreaking analysis of capitalism in 'The Communist Manifesto' and 'Capital.' The authors explore the intricate theoretical framework they developed, including their theories of surplus value, class struggle, and the inevitability of revolution.

- Section 3: Marxisms: Interpretations and Applications

This section traces the evolution of Marxist thought after Marx and Engels' deaths. The authors examine different interpretations of Marxism, such as those of Lenin, Trotsky, and Gramsci, and discuss the practical applications of Marxist ideas in various political movements and revolutions throughout history.

Throughout the book, the authors employ a rigorous comparative methodology, juxtaposing the writings of Marx and Engels with those of their contemporaries and successors. This approach provides a nuanced understanding of the origins, development, and impact of Marxist thought in its historical context.

'Comparative Real Time Political Analysis: Marx, Engels, and Marxisms' is an indispensable resource for students, scholars, and anyone interested in gaining a comprehensive understanding of Marxist theory and its influence on modern politics.
