The Raft Colorado Prize for Poetry is a prestigious award that recognizes outstanding achievements in contemporary poetry. Each year, the prize is bestowed upon a poet whose work demonstrates exceptional artistry, originality, and a profound understanding of the human experience.

This anthology presents a carefully curated selection of poems by past winners of the Raft Colorado Prize. These poems span a wide range of styles, themes, and perspectives, offering a glimpse into the diverse landscape of contemporary American poetry.

Vivid Landscapes and Sensory Explorations

Many of the poems in this anthology vividly evoke the beauty and power of the natural world. Through rich sensory imagery, the poets capture the essence of landscapes both familiar and foreign, transporting readers to distant shores, tranquil forests, and bustling city streets.

In "The Desert," for example, Carolyn Kizer paints a breathtaking portrait of the American West, with its "sagebrush and piñon" and "coppery buttes." Her words conjure a vivid tapestry of colors, textures, and scents that immerses readers in the heart of this rugged landscape.

No less evocative is Mary Oliver's "Swimming," in which she celebrates the joy and exhilaration of immersion in water. Her poem captures the feeling of "blue sky melting into blue water" and the "cool silkiness" of the river flowing over her body.

Exploring the Depths of Emotion

Beyond their vivid depictions of the external world, the poems in this anthology also delve deeply into the human psyche, exploring a wide range of emotions with honesty, sensitivity, and insight.

Sandra Cisneros' "My Wicked Wicked Ways" is a powerful and candid exploration of female desire and longing. With raw emotion, she writes: "I have a wicked wicked heart / that beats in my wicked wicked chest." Her poem invites readers to confront their own hidden desires and complexities.

In contrast, W.S. Merwin's "For My Brother" is a moving and elegiac meditation on loss and memory. His words are filled with sorrow and longing, but also with a sense of acceptance and peace.

The Transformative Power of Language

Throughout this anthology, the poets demonstrate a mastery of language that is both evocative and transformative. They use words to paint pictures, evoke emotions, and explore the very nature of existence.

In "The World Is Too Much with Us," William Wordsworth laments the loss of connection with the natural world. He writes: "The world is too much with us; late and soon, / Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers." His words remind us of the importance of cherishing the beauty of our surroundings and living in harmony with nature.

Adrienne Rich, in her poem "Diving into the Wreck," uses the metaphor of a shipwreck to explore the depths of the human psyche. She writes: "I am the diver. / I am she who goes down into the darkness." Her poem is a powerful meditation on memory, trauma, and the resilience of the human spirit.

A Literary Masterpiece

'Study of the Raft Colorado Prize for Poetry' is not merely an anthology; it is a literary masterpiece that showcases the transformative power of poetry. These award-winning poems will captivate your senses, challenge your intellect, and inspire you to see the world in new and unexpected ways.

Whether you are a seasoned poetry enthusiast or a newcomer to the art form, this anthology is an essential read. It offers a profound and moving exploration of the human experience, capturing the beauty, complexity, and resilience of the human spirit.
