Care

Grooming

Japanese Spitz require regular brushing to keep their coat free of mats and tangles. It is also important to bathe them monthly to keep their skin and coat healthy. However, it is important to use a gentle shampoo that is specifically designed for dogs.

Exercise

Japanese Spitz are active dogs that require regular exercise. A good rule of thumb is to provide them with 30 minutes of exercise per day.

Japanese Spitz need regular exercise to stay healthy and happy.

Diet

Japanese Spitz should be fed a high-quality diet that is specifically designed for small breeds. It is also important to avoid giving them table scraps or other human foods, as this can lead to weight gain and other health problems.

Behavior

Japanese Spitz are known for their charming and playful personality. They are also very intelligent and eager to please, which makes them easy to train. However, they can also be stubborn at times, so it is important to be patient and consistent when training them.

Japanese Spitz are playful and energetic dogs.

Socialization

Japanese Spitz are social dogs that enjoy being around people and other animals. It is important to socialize them at a young age to help them develop good social skills. This can be done by taking them to puppy classes, dog parks, or other social events.

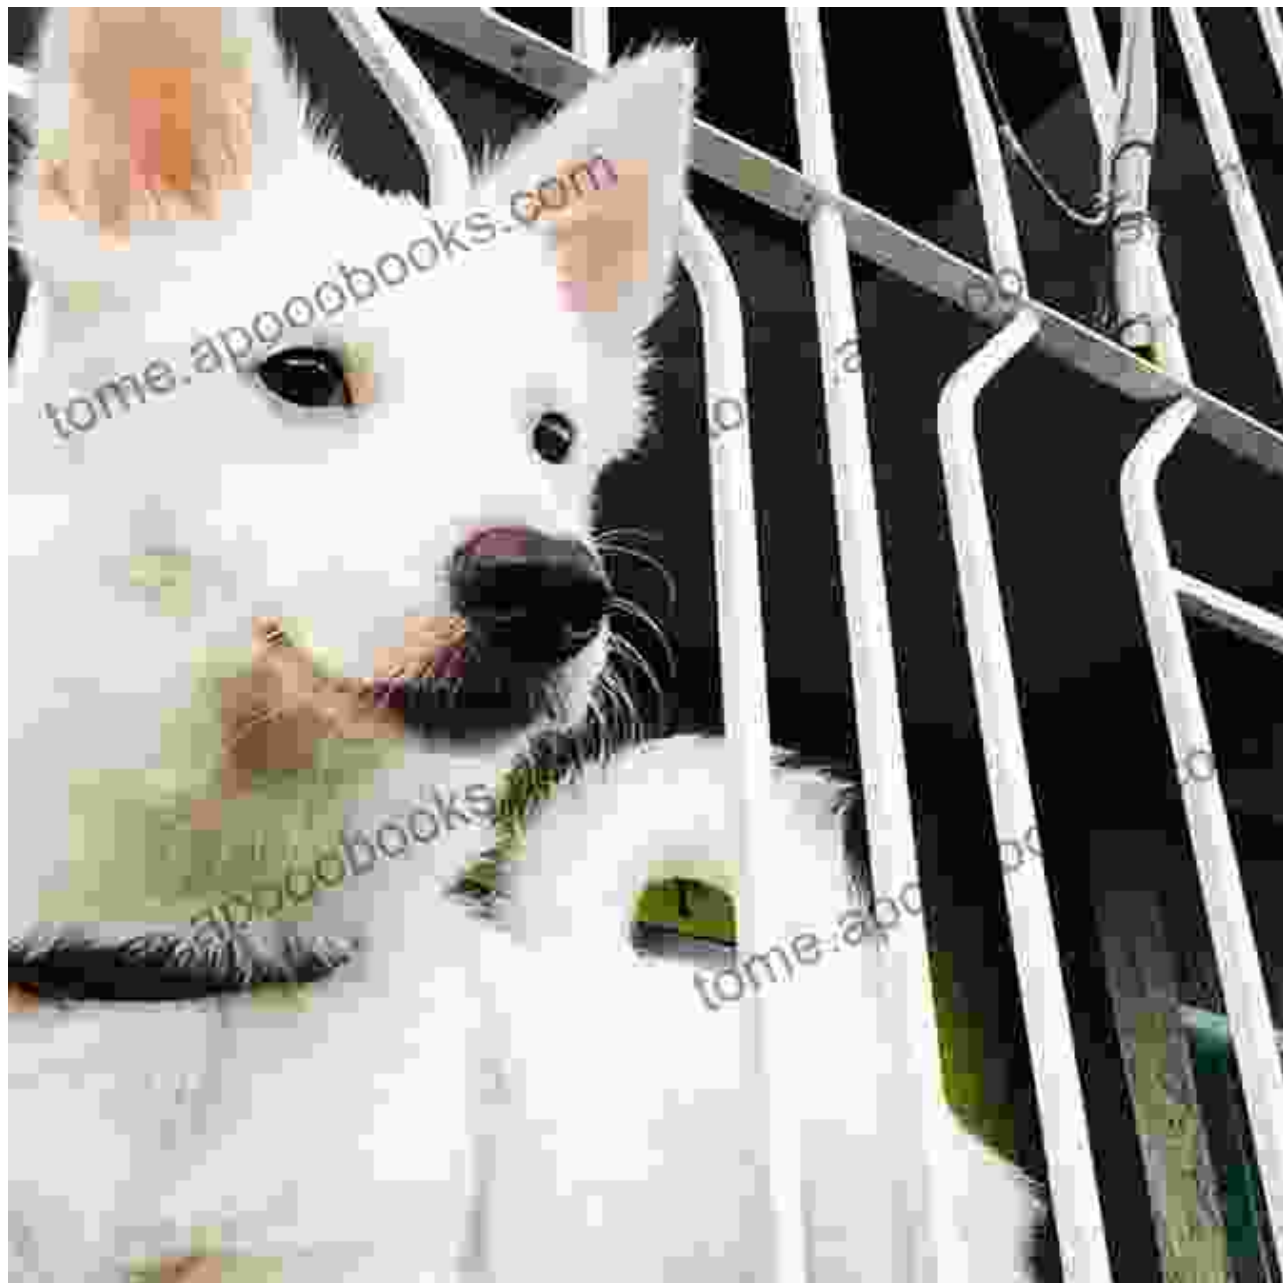

Health Care

Japanese Spitz are generally healthy dogs, but they are prone to certain health conditions, such as:

- Hip dysplasia: This is a condition in which the hip joint does not develop properly. It can cause pain, lameness, and arthritis.
- Patellar luxation: This is a condition in which the kneecap dislocates from its normal position. It can cause pain, lameness, and instability.
- Von Willebrand disease: This is a bleeding disorder that is caused by a deficiency of von Willebrand factor. It can cause excessive bleeding from even minor injuries.

It is important to take your Japanese Spitz to the vet for regular checkups to ensure that they are healthy and to catch any potential health problems early on.

Japanese Spitz should get regular checkups to ensure their health.

Costs

The cost of owning a Japanese Spitz can vary depending on a number of factors, such as the breeder, the age of the dog, and the geographical location. However, on average, you can expect to pay between $1,000 and $2,000 for a Japanese Spitz puppy.

In addition to the initial cost of purchasing a dog, there are also ongoing costs to consider, such as:
